About the program

The Schools Staff Wellbeing Toolkit is a group development program that delivers measurable improvements in individual wellbeing and shared social capital, with a powerful all-of-staff approach.

Self-paced and facilitated by a nominated Toolkit Leader from the staff group, the unique program offers school communities a way to work together to address common issues and challenges. Through increasing collaboration and trust, the program builds social capital enabling staff to be more supportive of one another and function more effectively as a community.

By building internal capability to champion and lead wellbeing initiatives, schools are able to drive meaningful, long term improvements without relying on costly external resources.

I'm pleased because the Toolkit has improved the wellbeing of those staff who participated - our results indicate as much. Staff wellbeing was one of our focuses for this year – it is a focus every year of course, but we wanted to attempt something more direct. Naturally, the improvements in wellbeing have significant ongoing benefits for the learning community, which makes for a happier school and an easier life for me.
